Anne C. Richard

Anne C Richard is Afghanistan coordination lead and distinguished fellow at Freedom House. From 2012 to 2017, she served as assistant secretary of state for population, refugees, and migration, making her the administration’s top diplomat on refugee issues as well as a leader on humanitarian and migration policies for the U.S. government. Since leaving the federal government, Richard has taught and lectured at a number of universities, including the University of Virginia, Georgetown University, Hamilton College, and the University of Pennsylvania. During that time, she has continued advocating on refugee issues and advising a wide range of refugee-support efforts. Prior to joining the Obama administration, Richard held senior positions at the International Rescue Committee, State Department, Peace Corps Headquarters, and the White House Office of Management and Budget. Richard has a bachelor’s in foreign service from Georgetown University and a master’s in public policy studies from the University of Chicago.
