

Budi Gunadi Sadikin

Budi Gunadi Sadikin is minister of health of the Republic of Indonesia. He is transforming Indonesia's health system and is actively involved in overcoming the COVID-19 pandemic by opening international networks and mobilizing domestic resources for the procurement of PCR test equipment, COVID vaccines and vaccine implementation and distribution systems, as well as procurement of healing drugs (therapeutic). He also plays an active role in handling COVID-19 by monitoring and managing seventy state-owned hospitals.

In 2006, he served as director of micro and retail banking at Bank Mandiri. After completing his position at Bank Mandiri, he served as senior advisor to the minister of state-owned enterprises from 2016 to 2017.

He started his career in 1988 as information technology officer at IBM Asia-Pacific in Tokyo, Japan, and later joined PT Bank Bali. Subsequently, he served as director of consumer and commercial banking for ABN AMRO Bank Indonesia & Malaysia. He also briefly joined PT Bank Danamon and Adira Quantum Multi Finance.