

Cameron Hudson

Cameron Hudson is an analyst and consultant on African security, governance, and geopolitical risk. Most recently, he served as a senior associate in the Africa Center at the Center for Strategic and International Studies and as a senior fellow in the Atlantic Council's Africa Center, where his work focused on U.S.-Africa policy, great-power competition, and security and governance trends across the continent. Previously, he was executive director of the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum's Center for the Prevention of Genocide. Before that, he held multiple roles in the U.S. government, including chief of staff to successive presidential special envoys for Sudan and director for African affairs on the National Security Council staff during the George W. Bush administration. He began his government career as an intelligence analyst in the Africa Directorate at the Central Intelligence Agency. His commentary has appeared in the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Washington Post, Foreign Policy, the Financial Times, National Public Radio, BBC, and Al Jazeera. He holds a BA from the University of Virginia and an MA from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University.