

David Malpass served as U.S. Treasury Undersecretary for International Affairs in 2017-2019 and as World Bank President in 2019-2023, following 24 years as a leading Wall Street economist and columnist with Forbes and the WSJ. He is a Distinguished Fellow in International Finance with Purdue University in Indiana and Washington DC. His consulting and public speaking activities focus on economics, markets, geopolitics and leadership. From 1984-1993, Mr. Malpass served in political appointments in Treasury, State and Congressional committees. He serves on boards and does public speaking in support of strengthening U.S. economic and international policies.

Email: David.Malpass@gmail.com

X Twitter: @davidrmlpass

