

Dhruv Singh

Dhruv Singh is an entrepreneur and investor with experience across technology, education, finance, and food and beverage sectors. He has cofounded four companies over the past fifteen years, including Bezzant Tech, an AI/ML-powered hedge fund; Aktivite, a software platform serving over 1MM students across 6 of the top 10 U.S. school districts; Savory, a vertically integrated food company; and Exubrance, a workplace wellness business, acquired by Tishman Speyer that he recently bought back.

Singh has invested in more than forty venture and growth-stage businesses and is a limited partner in multiple investment funds. Earlier in his career, he worked as a management consultant at McKinsey & Company in New York, advising clients in the technology/media/telecommunications and financial sectors.

Singh serves on the advisory council at the Harvard Kennedy School's center for business and government and is a term member at the Council on Foreign Relations. He has advised organizations including GiveDirectly and Peepul, a nonprofit focused on education in India. Singh graduated from Harvard College magna cum laude with a degree in economics with high honors.