

Ethan Bronner is Israel bureau chief and a senior Mideast editor at Bloomberg News, which he joined in 2015 after seventeen years at the New York Times. A graduate of Wesleyan University and Columbia Journalism School, he began his career at Reuters in 1980, reporting from London, Madrid, Brussels, and Jerusalem. From 1985 to 1997, he worked for the Boston Globe, including as Supreme Court correspondent in Washington, then Middle East correspondent based in Jerusalem.

At the New York Times, Bronner served as national education correspondent and education editor (1997-2001), then joined the investigative unit covering the September 11 attacks. He helped edit a series on Al Qaeda that won the 2001 Pulitzer Prize for explanatory journalism. He subsequently served as assistant editorial page editor, deputy foreign editor, Jerusalem bureau chief (2008-2012), national legal reporter and deputy national editor. Bronner is the author of Battle for Justice: How the Bork Nomination Shook America (Norton, 1989), chosen by the New York Public Library as one of the 25 best books of 1989.