

Gerald F. Seib

Gerald F. Seib has been a journalist with the Wall Street Journal for almost 45 years. He served as the Journal's executive Washington editor, and wrote the weekly "Capital Journal" column for twenty-nine years. Previously the Washington bureau chief and political editor of the Journal, he also reported on the Middle East for the Journal in the mid-1980s, covered the White House, has moderated three presidential debates, and interviewed every president since Ronald Reagan. He has served as a resident fellow at the Harvard Kennedy School's Institute of Politics, and is a senior mentor at the Center for Strategic and International Studies.