

Jacob J. Lew

Jacob J. Lew is a managing partner at Lindsay Goldberg. Lew served as the 76th United States secretary of the Treasury from 2013 to 2017 and previously was White House chief of staff to President Barack Obama and director of the Office of Management and Budget in both the Obama and Clinton Administrations. He was a principal domestic policy advisor to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. In the private sector, Lew was managing director and chief operating officer for two divisions at Citi where he was responsible for operations, technology, finance, human resources, legal and regional coordination. Previously, Lew was executive vice president and chief operating officer of New York University, where he was also a professor of public administration. Lew continues to teach public policy at Columbia University in the School of International and Public Affairs. He co-chaired the CFR Task Force Report on China's Belt and Road Initiative.