

Elijah Oliveros-Rosen

Elijah Oliveros-Rosen is the chief economist for emerging markets at S&P Global Ratings. He forecasts the main macroeconomic variables in emerging markets and publishes work on the economic outlook for these countries and other relevant topics. He was previously lead economist for Latin America at S&P Global Ratings.

Before joining S&P Global, Oliveros-Rosen was a Latin America country risk analyst at BMI Research, where he conducted macroeconomic forecasts and published commentary on breaking developments. He also held the role of lead Latin America financial markets strategist at BMI Research, in which he identified investment opportunities across foreign exchange (FX), fixed income, and equities.

Oliveros-Rosen received his bachelor's degree in international economics from the University of Richmond, and his master's degree in global finance, trade, and economic integration from the Josef Korbel School of International Studies at the University of Denver.