

Zaid A. Zaid

Zaid A. Zaid is currently head of U.S. public policy at Cloudflare. Before Cloudflare, Zaid was the head of North America for strategic response policy at Meta. Zaid has broad and diverse government service experience. Most recently, he served on the Biden/Harris transition team for the State Department and international development agencies. In the Barack Obama administration, he served as special assistant to President Obama and associate White House counsel, where he advised White House and senior executive branch officials across multiple agencies, negotiated with Congress on behalf of the White House, and represented a witness before the Congressional Select Committee on Benghazi. He also served as the senior attorney advisor to the general counsel at USAID. As a career foreign service officer, Zaid served in Egypt, Iraq, Tunisia, and at the U.S. Mission to the United Nations. In addition to his legal experience in the government, Zaid worked in private practice at Wilmer Hale after three federal clerkships. Zaid is a Truman National Security Project fellow and a nonresident senior fellow at the Center for the Study of the Presidency and Congress. He is also the chair of the advisory committee for the Council of Global Equality, on the board of directors of iMMAP, the board of advisors of the School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University, and the board of governors of Georgetown University. Zaid holds a BSFS from Georgetown University School of Foreign Service, a MALD from Tufts University's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, and a JD from Columbia Law School, where he was on the editorial board of the Columbia Law Review.